

SARA WINS AWARD FOR TECHNOLOGY SKILL

Exeter Business School student Sara Sheridan has been awarded the Revell Research Systems Prize for being the outstanding performer on her IT course. Sara was named the top final year student in FdSc Internet Technology in Business, a degree awarded by the University of Plymouth.

Sara Sheridan is congratulated by Dr Colin Williams, right, deputy dean of the UPC Faculty, Plymouth University, with Alastair Revell, managing consultant of Revell Research Systems, which sponsored the university's Revell Research Systems Prize.

Professor Peter John, the university's deputy vice-chancellor, presented her with the prize at a degree ceremony at Plymouth Guildhall.

The Revell Research Systems Prize has been established by the Exeter-based management and technology consulting practice to mark its 21st year in business. Sara has landed an IT job with international anti-virus firm Sophos in Oxford.
